
V.J.F. Freitas\textsuperscript{a,*,} D. Rondina\textsuperscript{a}, D.M. Nogueira\textsuperscript{a}, A.A. Simplício\textsuperscript{b}

\textsuperscript{a}Laboratório de Fisiologia e Controle da Reprodução, Faculdade de Veterinária, Universidade Estadual do Ceará-FAVET, Avenue Paranjana, 1700 Campus do Itaperi, Fortaleza, Ceará CEP 60740-000, Brazil
\textsuperscript{b}Centro Nacional Pesquisa Caprinos (EMBRAPA-CNPC), Sobral, Ceará CEP 60740-000, Brazil

Received 4 March 2003; received in revised form 18 May 2004; accepted 1 June 2004

The author regrets that in the above article Figs. 2 and 3 were incorrectly printed. They are now reproduced below.

!Milk production graph

Fig. 2. Milk production (kg) (mean ± S.E.M.) in Anglo-Nubian and Saanen goats raised in semi-arid region of North-eastern Brazil.

DOI of original article: 10.1016/j.livprodsci.2004.06.005.
* Corresponding author. Tel.: +55 85 299 2761; fax: +55 85 299 2740. E-mail address: vjff@uece.br (V.J.F. Freitas).
Fig. 3. Mean (± S.E.M.) of BCS in Anglo-Nubian and Saanen goats at partum (day 0) and at 14, 28, 42 and 56 days after partum, when raised in semi-arid region of North-eastern Brazil (a, b: P<0.05).